

“Humanity” by August Wittenstein, Skokie

Humanity

Humanity ruins everything.

From the atmosphere to the bottom of the ocean.

Ruined.

Humanity is ill-mannered and insolent.

We do not think for one second of the well being for the biosphere we live in.

Humanity stops plant-life from growing.

We rip out trees and grass from the dirt like how we take out splinters from our hands.

Humanity kills.

The Earth would be much more successful without us.

Vegetation would actually be prosperous,

animals wouldn't be slaughtered,

the air wouldn't be so trashed,

and the sea wouldn't be so mucky.

Humanity demolishes what nature produces.
