

The bloomy, gloomy forest is a mystery.

You can only see

what the eye can meet.

You can only feel

what the eye can reach.

You lightly push some pine trees

out of the way,

the sun brightly shines on your face.

Then you see

the beautiful deep, lotus-colored sea.

You look up at the sky, violet and charcoal

as the sea underneath the sea says, you shall come with me.